COMPROMISE MEASURES ON RESALE OF LARGER GHI HOMES CONSIDERED

by Al Skolnik

Differences over resale policy in connection with the Greenbelt Homes, Inc., larger homes program appear to have narrowed after last Thursday's open meeting. This meeting, called by the GHI board, was the first in a series designed to hammer out a new policy that could be submitted to the membership for approval at the annual meeting scheduled for June 1.

One compromise proposal that seems to be gaining ground is that of applying the housing price index to a percentage—say, 50 percent—of the original sales price of the new home (with appropriate allowances for improvements). This would be a compromise between applying the housing index to the total sales price of the house and applying the index to just the cash investment (down payment plus principal payments on mortgage).

As an illustration, take the case of a larger home which was purchased for $27,000. Assume that the purchaser decides to sell five years later and the housing index has gone up 10 percent during this period. The housing index would then be applied not to the full $27,000 but to predetermined proportion—say, 50 percent of $27,000, or $13,500. In this instance, the new resale price would be $28,350 ($27,000 plus $1,350).

This illustration assumes that no improvements are involved and that the house is in a salable shape (if not, deductions would be made from the owner's equity to bring the house up to salable shape).

If the total sales price of the original house were used as a basis, then the resale price, in the illustration above, would be $29,700 ($27,000 plus 10 percent of $27,000). If just the cash investment were used and the member made a down payment of 10 percent, the resale price would be in the vicinity of $27,750.

Other Proposals

Another proposal would leave the cost of the land out of the equation and apply the housing index to the total sales price of the home, after deducting the cost of the land.

Still another proposal was to extend the period during which no gain at all would be allowed. At present, no gain is being allowed during the first two years of occupancy and this could be increased to three, four, or five years.

Proposals not using the housing index were also advanced. One would provide that the amount of gain allowed in a new larger home would be tied to the average gain that was realized by sellers of old GHI homes during the same period. Another was to use the appraisal value to determine the gain, but only allow the selling member that proportion of the gain that was represented by his cash investment.

The next meeting in the series will be held Monday evening, May 1, at 8 p.m. at the GHI offices.

City Notes

A small area of Greenbelt was without water on Tuesday when a water main ruptured at the end of Lakeside Drive. The break also caused rusty water and lowered water pressure in most of the city.

The damage occurred when a bulldozer working in the soft clay area of the University Square swimming pool crossed over a storm sewer line, breaking it and crushing the water main which lay beneath it. A crew from the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission worked throughout the day to repair the main.

Repair of the city's leaf vacuum, the "Litter Gitter," has been delayed because of the failure of a needed new part to arrive. In the meantime, piles of leaves awaiting removal will have to go on waiting. The Public Works Dept. crew, however, cleaned roadsides throughout the city last week. They also sodded along the bank at the bay end of the lake, but could not complete the job because they ran out of sod and the supplier was slow in making delivery.

Everything seems to be in an unfinished state—the exit road being built from Springhill Lake to the Beltway Plaza, for example, and the repair job to the gardens and lawn areas in the commercial Center following excavations to repair the heating system. Crews for private contractors are working on both projects, but the end is not in sight.

It has been prepared by the League to explain some of the questions to be decided by the Constitutional Convention when it convenes next September 13. The booklet costs 15c, and copies may be obtained by calling 345-8390 or writing to Mrs. John Freund, 9135 Market Lane #102, Greenbelt, Md. 20770.

Greenbelt Consumer Services Acquires Nine Kroger Stores

Sale of nine Kroger Co. supermarkets in the Washington D. C. area to Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc., operators of Consumers Supermarkets, was announced last week.

The announcement was made jointly by Jacob E. Davis, President of Kroger, and Benjamin Rosenzweig, President of G.C.S. Four of the stores are located in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Maryland and the remainder are situated in Arlington and Fairfax Counties in Northern Virginia.

In announcing the sale, Mr. Davis said:

"After much study and careful consideration, we reluctantly concluded that the continued investment of management time and effort required to operate these stores in keeping with Kroger standards was not in the best interests of our shareholders."

"The new store sites so vital to expansion and growth in the market were difficult and expensive to secure. By disposing of these stores at this time we will be better able to utilize company assets in expansion plans elsewhere."

Mr. Rosenzweig pointed out that he appreciated Kroger's confidence in the business ability of GCS, as indicated by the sale. "The Co-op is looking forward to this challenging opportunity for growth," he stated, and added, "We intend to bring the customers of these new stores the same high quality foods, services and price saving which have earned Consumers Supermarkets their reputation for integrity in Washington."

Robert E. Morrow, Resident General Manager of Greenbelt and Vice President of Checchi & Co., the managing agents of Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc., stated that the Cooperative planned to operate the stores as part of their growing chain of Consumer Supermarkets. The sale is effective May 1.

With the addition of the Kroger stores, Greenbelt will operate a total of 22 supermarkets. Nineteen of these are in the Washington area; two in Baltimore; and one in Westminster, Maryland. The Greenbelt Co-op operates eight Consumer Service Stations; seven Consumers Pharmacies; and four SCAN Co-op Contemporary furniture stores. It also operates jointly with the National Farmers Union and the National Council of Senior Citizens, a mail order pharmacy in the District of Columbia called Direct Drug Service.

Greenbelt is the largest urban Consumer Cooperative in the United States. Sales for the last fiscal year, which ended January 28, 1967, were $32,800,000, the highest ever. The Co-op is owned by 19,000 member families, most of whom live in the Washington-Baltimore area. Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc., began 1939 in Greenbelt, Maryland where it still operates several facilities.

The sale includes merchandise, store equipment and leasehold improvements. Mr. Morrow said Kroger store personnel would be retained by the Greenbelt organization. Kroger's supervisory people will assume other positions elsewhere in the company's organization, Mr. Davis explained.

Police Blotter

A 70-year-old Silver Spring man employed in the Greenbelt shoe repair shop on Centerway, was arrested on April 19 and charged with assault on a minor child. He is accused of having molested the child a 10-year-old girl, in the shop on four occasions, the latest on April 12. He has been released on bond pending a hearing.

A 57-year-old Lakeside North man is in the intensive care unit of Prince Georges Hospital suffering from an overdose of a mixture of drugs. He was found, semi-conscious, on April 20 in his apartment at 404 Ridge Rd. after a neighbor called the police. Several notes were also found, their contents indicating the man had been despondent over domestic problems.

Approximately 15 windows were broken at the North End School on April 15 around 10 p.m. A group of boys ran away when the police arrived, but two of them, ages 14 and 15, were picked up. The others are still being sought. The parent of one of the boys has offered to help pay for the damages.

The police have received a report of a case of indecent exposure behind Greenbelt Junior High School on April 14. A 13-year-old girl returning home to Springhill Lake was reportedly followed by a man at the edge of the woods who exhibited himself indecently but did not attempt to approach her. She returned to school and reported the incident. The police are looking for the man, described as a heavy-set white male, 18 or 19 years of age, 5'7" or 8", with brown hair and a fair complexion, and wearing a white, short-sleeved shirt and green trousers.

According to Police Chief William Lane, the school will be under police surveillance; in addition, a teacher will be stationed in the area until all students have left the school.

A resident of Springhill Lake was arrested on April 20 and charged with assault with a motor vehicle on the complaint of a store detective at S. Klein's. The detective stated that he followed the man out of the store to the parking lot at Beltway Plaza after noticing him take two pairs of trousers. When he tried to apprehend him, the man reportedly ran into his car and drove rapidly away, trying to run down the detective in the process. The man was arrested later in the day and the merchandise was recovered. He has been released on bond pending a hearing.

Chief Lane reports that he has been appointed Boy Scout Commissioner for the Greenbelt area. He will assist adult leaders in the development of programs for Greenbelt's Cub Pack 746, troop 746, and the Explorer Post. A former scout himself, the Chief says he "would like to see every boy in Greenbelt of the right age join a cub scout or boy scout troop. It's fun for them and it builds character and teaches them a lot of things they should know to become self-reliant men."

Twenty-Five Years Ago

In January, after prolonged negotiations, Greenbelters finally had reliable bus transportation into the District of Columbia. The Capital Transit Co. provided regular bus service to Mount Rainier at half-hourly intervals from 5:30 a.m. to 1:30 a.m. Once at Mount Rainier, passengers transferred to another bus for the trip into Washington. Commuting time for the full trip was 57 minutes and the cost was 34 cents.

The influx of children from the new Defense Homes was being felt at the Elementary School and at the High School. The Federal Works Agency announced plans for building an addition to the high school and for a new elementary school to be ready by the fall at the North end of town.

The Greenbelt Hospital closed its doors at the end of January when the Farm Security Administration failed to provide funds for its maintenance. A poll of the citizens indicated that only 20% of families would be willing to pay $1 a month to keep it open. However, the Health Association was still functioning and two new doctors were hired, one of whom was Dr. Eisner.

America was now at war, and the town was deeply involved in civil defense activities. Air raid drills were held, airplane "spotters" manned the roof of the drugstore day and night, practice "blackout" drills were held under the supervision of some 80 air raid wardens, and over 250 people were taking first aid courses. The lack of hospital and emergency facilities was regretted, since the nearest hospital now was in D. C.

In February a Civil Defense Rally was held; the guest of honor was Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, and over $1000 was raised. The money was used to equip five first-aid stations.

In March the Farm Security Administration had a change of heart and decided to permit over-income families to remain in town at least until the end of the school year. However, many families had already moved away. The Cooperator took the position that FSA ought to let present over-income families stay on at an increased rent.

In April the Health Association took over the former hospital facilities and equipment on a rental basis — now the town had emergency medical facilities in case of disaster or enemy attack.

A Salvage Drive was conducted every week; the U.S. Government asked everyone to collect newspapers, magazines, empty tin cans and toothpaste tubes, and to be careful not to waste electricity. Rationing of gasoline and sugar were imminent.

Appreciation Expressed

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to express to the City Council and the people of Greenbelt my gratitude and appreciation for the resolution presented to me by your City Council on Monday, April 17.

My efforts on behalf of the City of Greenbelt were more than an obligation to a portion of my constituency. I am deeply aware of the historical significance of Greenbelt as a model, planned community and a unique example of the great American tradition of local self-government.

Because of my particular concern and respect for Greenbelt, I have been motivated and will so continue to do whatever I can on behalf of your fine and prosperous city.

I should note in conclusion that the General Assembly of Maryland often is made most aware of the problems of a municipality when the citizens themselves take a strong and active interest in pending legislation. In this respect, Greenbelt is indeed fortunate because of the active participation of your distinguished citizens, many of whom did appear in Annapolis in support of local, county and State legislation.

The newly organized Prince Georges County Civil Liberties Union will replace its ad hoc Executive Board by mailed ballot on or about April 30.

The next membership meeting is planned for Wednesday, May 31. The public is invited. Call 345-3372 for further information.

Junior High Yearbook Wins First Place Award

by Maxine Sarvis

PYLON for 1966, Greenbelt Junior High's yearbook, was awarded a first place rating in the senior high division at the 21st Annual Maryland Scholastic Press Advisers Convention held Saturday, April 22 at Parkville Senior High School, Parkville, Baltimore County, Maryland.

PYLON ranked 4th in the state among the first place senior high winners. This is the first time in the 21 year history of the Maryland Scholastic Press Advisers Convention that a junior high ever captured the coveted first place rating.

Pylon scored an unprecedented 543 points out of a possible 600 in the state competition. The 88 page annual was judged on its layout, coverage of the total school program, originality, and supervision.

This is the second high honor accorded Pylon 1966. Last October, Pylon '66 entered national competition for the first time and was awarded a second place rating by the Columbia Scholastic Press Convention, Columbia University, New York City.

C. Steven Bittner, advisor to Pylon remarked, "I can't believe it's true. We're just a junior high. Greenbelt owes a big vote of thanks to Greg Pontious (Pylon '66 Editor-in-Chief) and Marylynn Chandler (Assistant Editor) and their staff. Greg and the staff gave up a lot of weekends to make us tops in the state."

According to Sue Risinger, Pylon's 1967 Editor-in-chief, the 1967 edition of Pylon is expected to arrive from the Taylor Publishing Company, Dallas, Texas sometime during the last week in May.

Drama Program to Benefit Student Exchange Program

An exchange-of-students program, under which students from abroad come to live here with "adoptive" families for a summer or a school year and go to school here, and youngsters from this country go abroad to live with "adoptive" families for similar periods, is to be aided by a benefit theatre party May 11, the American Field Service community chapter serving High Point High School has announced.

This year there has been an Australian girl at High Point High under the AFS program; last year there was a Finnish AFS girl at High Point.

Another AFS program called "Americans Aboard" affords our own students the opportunity of spending a year or a summer in a foreign country. This year for the first time High Point will participate in this program, and a Greenbelt girl, Ruth Amberg, 6-E Hillside, has been named as a finalist, to go abroad if a suitable foreign family is found with whom she could live for this summer.

The May 11 benefit for the Foreign Student Scholarship Fund for High Point will be a presentation by The Adelphians, a 10-year-old local amateur group, of the Ayn Rand play, "The Night of January 16th." Foreign students in this area will serve as ushers.

Performance will be at 8:30 p.m. at Buck Lodge Junior High School, Buck Lodge Rd., Adelphi, off Riggs Rd. three blocks north of Adelphi Rd.

Tickets for the benefit will be on sale at Twin Pines Savings & Loan Assn., or by calling HEMlock 9-1021. Contributions will also be welcome. Checks may be made out to American Field Service Benefit and mailed to Mrs. Freeman Morgan, 7209 14th Avenue, Takoma Park, Md.
